

Educational Consulting

Parenting comes with a unique set of challenges for every age and stage, especially if you're living away from family and support systems.

Personalised educational consulting sessions can support you through any parenting or education-related challenges you may be experiencing, whether it's dealing with new behaviours at home, navigating school systems and pressures, or finding strategies that work for your family.

My goal is to provide practical, expert advice tailored to your unique situation, helping you to feel more confident and supported in your parenting journey.
